

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a method for identifying a polypeptide that interacts with a known protein, which method uses fusion proteins with GFP fragments.